

Discussions of the Integration of Faith and Learning: Preparing Faculty to Teach from a Christian World-View

Resources collected by Rich Sherry, Bethel College

Christian colleges discuss very often the “integration of faith and learning,” but most faculty will admit that it is an ongoing project, an ongoing task, rather than something settled once for all. It is not always settled what one means by "integration," or how that goes on.

One of the most commonly referenced articles in that discussion is featured below, by William Hasker. The websites included provide examples of how the discussion proceeds on a number of Christian campuses. The material by Jerry Pattengale from Indiana Wesleyan University shows how one faculty member works with these issues with students.

Regent University: Nine Models and other discussion

<http://www.regent.edu/admin/cids/flic.htm>

Union University: Faith Integration: A Matter of Discipleship

http://www.cccu.org/docLib/20020228_faith.doc

Azusa Pacific University: Faith-Learning Integration: An Overview by William Hasker

<http://home.apu.edu/~bsimmerok/facdevweb/Mntr/FathLrn/wroksheet.htm>

or the CCCU website version

http://www.cccu.org/resourcecenter/rc_detail.asp?resID=973&parentCatID=89

Azusa Pacific University: Summary Notes on David Gill's The Opening of the Christian Mind: Taking Every Thought Captive to Christ

<http://home.apu.edu/~bsimmerok/facdevweb/Mntr/FathLrn/Gill.htm>

CCCU Study Course on Faith and the Disciplines

http://www.cccu.org/projects/project_detail.asp?projectID=26

“Integrating Faith & Learning in Higher Education,” David Dockery, at Union University

<http://www.uu.edu/dockery/092000-erlc.htm>

Abilene Christian University: “Integrating Faith with Learning in Teacher Education”

<http://www.acu.edu/academics/education/integratingfaith.html>

Robert Harris, Vanguard University of California, “The Integration of Faith and Learning.”

<http://www.virtualsalt.com/integrat.htm>

"A New Rallying Cry," Howard Culbertson, Southern Nazarene University (Institute for Christian Leadership, 1996)

<http://www.iclnet.org/pub/facdialogue/Issue26/Culbertson.html>

Jerry Pattengale, Indiana Wesleyan, lectures for UNV180: Worldchangers. Course lectures on core concepts for students.

<http://www.indwes.edu/jp/WorldChangers.html>